

Background:

Beginning November 1, 2025, the federal government will no longer issue any new federal SNAP (CalFresh in California) payments, due to the ongoing government shutdown. Over twenty states, including California, are currently suing the Trump Administration over their decision to withhold SNAP benefits.

To prevent widespread food insecurity, California allocated $80M in state funds to assist food banks with food distribution and offset federal CalFresh dollars

In Alameda County, there are around 179,000 county residents who utilize CalFresh benefits. In late October, the Alameda County Board of Supervisors directed approximately $10M in additional funding for local programs to feed residents. Of the $10M, $8.3M will go to the Alameda County Community Food Bank, and $1.7M will be allotted for senior residents.

Q&A:

How long will this last?

We don't know. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has indicated that SNAP payments will restart once the U.S. Congress and the White House end the government shutdown or if there is a temporary funding deal that allows SNAP benefits to resume.

Can CalFresh recipients use leftover funds on their EBT cards?

Yes. Any money that is already loaded onto EBT cards may be used.

Will CalFresh recipients receive their missed money after the government reopens?

Unknown. The USDA has not indicated any plans to retroactively fund or reimburse SNAP benefits missed during the federal government shutdown.

What is California's Response?

To prevent widespread food insecurity, California allocated $80M in state funds to assist food banks with food distribution and offset federal CalFresh dollars. Governor Gavin Newsom also mobilized the National Guard to support food banks by distributing and delivering meals to the most vulnerable.

What is Alameda County's Response?

In late October, the Alameda County Board of Supervisors directed approximately $10M in additional funding for local programs to feed residents. Of the $10M, $8.3M will go to the Alameda County Community Food Bank, and $1.7M will be allotted for senior residents.
